WHAT TO DO

Most children fight off the infection by themselves and fever is a normal part of this.

If your child is miserable due to fever or aches and pains, you can give paracetamol to make them more comfortable. Follow the dosage instructions on the bottle. It is dangerous to give more than the recommended dose.

Cough and runny or stuffy nose by themselves are not serious.

Give your child regular fluids, and keep them at home and resting. Keep them away from others until they are well to stop the spread.

See your doctor if your child has flu-like symptoms and:

- is less than 3 months old with a fever
- has a long-lasting (chronic) condition such as heart disease, cysticfibrosis or other lung condition, asthma, diabetes, an organ transplant, cancer or leukaemia
- is 3 years or older, has a sore throat and is Māori or Pasifika. They need a swab for strep throat and treatment if positive
- doesn't seem to be improving.

See your doctor URGENTLY if your child of any age:

- is drinking less than half of their normal breastmilk or other fluid
- is having fewer than 4 wet nappies in 24 hours
- is severely irritable and is not wanting to be held
- has trouble breathing, has noisy breathing or is breathing fast
- looks very unwell and you are concerned
- has tummy pain, vomiting or diarrhoea and seems sicker than you would expect.

Dial 111 for urgent medical help if your child:

- has blue lips and tongue
- has severe difficulty breathing
- has any episodes of irregular or stopping breathing
- has a worrying rash especially one that does not go away when you press on it
- is unconscious or you can't wake them up properly.

Your child needs a COVID-19 test if they:

- are a household contact of a person with COVID-19 on their Day 3 and Day 7 of self-isolation,
- have been a close contact of someone with COVID-19 and have symptoms.
